If you don't know what to do with that little cash present you received, start a Christmas Savings Account.

News item says Swarthmore girls have started to shine their own shoes to help win the war. Awful the effect war has on the poor things!

A turkey-filled stomach would certainly have its effect on Pershing's boys but a shipload of machine guns would have been a timely Christmas present to them.

A recent editorial in the New York World shows up the unpatriotic actions of brother Democrats in the South. The editors of the World and local Democratic organ must have something in common.

Quite often one hears the query, "Why do not the British and French airmen raid German bases and cities or the Germans do the Allies?" They do. It is seldom though that any news of damage done leaks back to the Allies. The Allies' airmen only know that they have made hits. Germany, of course, does not say how much damage is done.

NOT NEW

Fuel Administrator Garfield's remarks on the coal situation may have been a revelation to the people of this nation and to the majority of the members of Congress who are indeed in need of much enlightenment on most public matters. It is a fact undenied that the price of coal for a part of this year was exorbitant. None of the coal operators will deny that they sold their spot coal to the highest bidder and bidders were plenty. Now, however, the Fuel Administrator has put the screws on so tight that for the coming year the coal industry will be as much of a gamble as ever. With ideal conditions, such as plenty of labor and a full car supply, the operator can make money but his supply labor is limited and the car supply is not encouraging.

The car supply and adequate transportation facilities are now the paramount needs of the coal industry and incidentally the whole manufacturing world. The Fuel Administrator can well turn its attention to this matter and let the operator alone with the problems of production.

WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT IT?

In our well meant efforts to do honor to departing soldiers we very often overdo things to an extent that is not appreciated by the men themselves. Three contingents of men have left Clearfield for the New National Army and each time the streets around them have been so crowded that it was nearly impossible for any loved one or near friend to get close enough to have a parting word to the soldiers. Several of the men who expect to go in the next contingent are quite anxious to get to camp and begin their training for the work that they see clearly defined before them but they say they actually dread the necessity of going through the long ceremony which marks their departure. These men who are to leave, know by our support of the Liberty Bond Issue, the Red Cross Campaign, the Y. M. C. A. campaign and the monster demonstrations heretofore held that every last one of us back home are with them to the last ditch. What need then to go through the same form again?

Further holding of demonstrations will take many men away from tasks which should be performed without delay; idlers who seek an excuse for absence from work will seize upon the opportunity given them and this, together with the omnipresent curiosity bent creature who must follow a crowd, should be enough to prove that further demonstrations will simply crowd out of good intentions.

On the day of departure of the largest contingent it was not a pleasant spectacle to witness an aged mother standing on the sidewalk waving a farewell to her son who was surrounded by a crowd of pill-smoking doctors inwardly gloating over their good fortune in not being caught in the draft.

Let us stand back next time giving friends and relatives a chance for the privilege that is rightfully theirs. Brave and patriotic men shrink from demonstrations. They prefer to go quietly and with steadfast purpose. And we are sending just that kind of men to Camp Lee.

YOUNG MAN TWICE MISTAKEN ONE'S INABILITY TO SLEEP

Addressed as Salesman in Hat Store and Given a Dollar Bill as Tip at Restaurant.

"I forgot to have my initials put in a new hat that I bought last week," said Mr. Blackington, "and so, thinking that way today, I stopped in at the store."

"A little back from the door I saw a tall, straight, kindly looking young man standing there, hatless, looking toward the front, and to him I said, at the same time holding out my hat: 'Will you please put my initials in this hat?'"

"Well, I'd be glad to do that for you," the tall young man said, "but I am waiting here to have the initials put in my own hat. And he said this smiling, and with absolute good nature."

"Then I found a salesman who took my hat; and when I returned to express to the tall young man my regret over having made such a mistake in first addressing him he said it was all right, and told a little story of a somewhat similar experience that had once befallen him."

"One night last winter while he was waiting in a restaurant for a friend who was to join him there, being in dress clothes at the time and standing at the moment near the door, a guest in passing put something into his hand. He didn't look at this, but tucked it in his pocket. A little later when it occurred to him that some body had handed him something he fished it out of his pocket to see what it was. It was a dollar bill."

ONE'S INABILITY TO SLEEP

Inconvenient May Be Overcome by Forgetting About It and Avoiding Unnecessary Excitement.

If you don't sleep well don't worry about it. Your head of sleep isn't going to tell you or drive you insane, that is the substance of the advice given by a doctor within in the American Magazine.

It is advice that a good many nervous people need, observes the Kansas City Star. How often do you hear some one apprehensively complaining that he has a "nail night." The chances are that he only thinks he has a "nail night" and that in reality he has several hours of sleep between the eyes of a cat.

But even if he is a "nail night" it is not a thing to be worried about. Especially if it is nothing to worry about, it is nothing to worry about.

The way to get over insomnia is to pay no attention to it, and not to talk about it. Sleep is largely a matter of habit. It depends on living rationally and going to bed at a regular time. You are likely to be wakened if you rise yourself up in the evening. If you work at night or get deeply interested in anything you find it difficult to sleep. That is the chief reason for verities after a night. The excitement of the evening interferes with sleep. The only way to get over the insomnia is to forget about it.

SPORT CHATTER

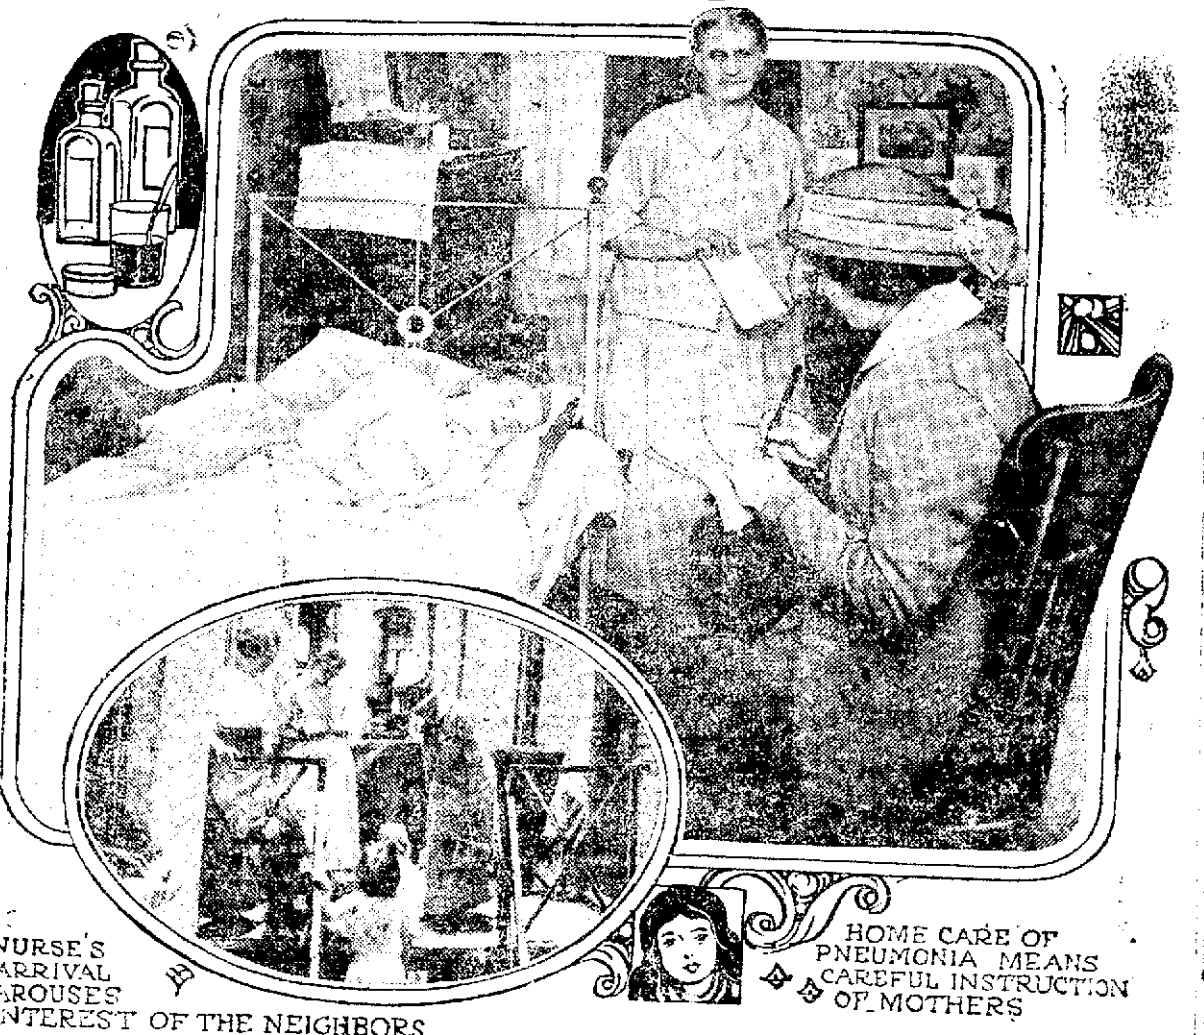

Now that Pitcher George Foster has announced his retirement, it is plain that the Red Sox were on the job when they made the deal for Joe Bush of the Athletics.

Eddie Mahan, Harvard's celebrated football player, has been selected as one of the fifty-one Harvard men who will enter the third officers' training camp at Camp Yaphank next month. Mahan is now an enlisted man in the Marines.

The $50,000 reputed to have been paid by the Red Sox for Schang, Strunk and Bush of the Athletics has undergone considerable shrinkage of late. It is now said that the real price was less than half of the figures first reported.

Remaking a War Map of New York

NURSE'S ARRIVAL AROUSES INTEREST OF THE NEIGHBORS

HOME CARE OF PNEUMONIA MEANS CAREFUL INSTRUCTION OF MOTHERS

Nurses Are Fighting a Winning Fight Against Pneumonia.

In the office of the Henry Street settlement on the lower East side of New York there is a war map of New York city. It is different both in purpose and appearance from the war map of Europe. It is a peace time war map, but it depicts the advances against pneumonia, one of the worst enemies of mankind, just as those maps of the western front picture the progress against the imperialistic enemy of democracy. This peace time war map shows graphically the need for repelling the war-demonstrated army of nurses just as those maps of the western front picture the progress against the imperialistic enemy of democracy. This peace time war map shows graphically the need for repelling the war-demonstrated army of nurses just as those maps of the western front picture the progress against the imperialistic enemy of democracy. This peace time war map shows graphically the need for repelling the war-demonstrated army of nurses just as those maps of the western front picture the progress against the imperialistic enemy of democracy.

The nurses of the "House on Henry" street are striving to remake this foreign born Jews. About 42 per cent. pneumonia map just as the confounding of the cases were babies under two years and 76 per cent. were children under five. Each blue headed pin represents a case of pneumonia that the nurses, under the direction of a physician, have cared for in the patient's home. Each black headed pin represents a death. In certain sections of the East side, particularly where the Italians live, these pins are clustered so closely that there is literally no room for a pin point between them. The map is a constant reminder to the nurses of the work they have set before themselves. This is to get rid of the black pins as early and as quickly as possible to eliminate the blue pins. Last year the Henry Street settlement had more cases of pneumonia under its care than all hospitals of the city put together. The nurses in the House on Henry street were under the direction of Miss Lillian D. Wald, director of the House on Henry street settlement, who is 29, while the record of the House on Henry street settlement is 1914.

MARRIED AT HARRISBURG

The following was clipped from the Harrisburg Telegraph under date of December 21st:

At the Stevens Memorial Methodist Episcopal church last evening Miss Waiva E. Klare and J. Oram Wible were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Dr. Clayton Albert Smucker. A touch of more than usual romance is woven into the marriage of the young couple. The bridegroom just home from the Quartermaster's Training School, Columbus, O., decided that, before the call came to go to France he and Miss Klare, who has been employed by the state of Pennsylvania, must wed. The acquaintance has not been short, but it was not until quite recently that the wedding was decided upon. After a short wedding journey the bride will make her home at Harrisburg until the war is over. Mr. Wible, before his enlistment was employed in Pittsburgh.

Miss Klare is a Clearfield county girl and is well known in this city. Her many friends will join in congratulating her.

ONE FICKLE WOMAN

Orville K. Davis, through his attorney A. R. Chase, Esq., filed an application in the Prothonotary's office this morning in which he asks for a divorce from his wife, Grace Davis. The husband states that they were married Dec. 6, 1916, and alleges that he learned as early as March 26, 1917, that his wife thought more of Newton J. Barger than she did of her lawful hubby, hence they separated in April and the divorce suit follows.

"SERVANT" AN ABUSED WORD
President of United States, Heads of Banks, Ministers, Physicians, Are in Same Class.

It is a pity that we have allowed opportunity to attach to the good old word "servant," opprobrium utterly unmerited. Talk about "help," or the latest equivalent, "maid," used quite inappropriately, says the Youth's Companion, does not alter circumstances in the least, nor is there any reason why we should wish them altered. Every one who is worth anything is a servant. The merchant serves his customers. If he serves them not well, they discharge him. The lawyer serves his clients, the minister his parishioners, the doctor his patients. The president of a bank is a servant, and so is the president of a railway. The president of the United States is the hired servant of the people of the United States, and few servants in any occupation are more abused by their masters.

Service, well and faithfully performed, is the only real dignity, and all the outward pomp and insignia of rank are but badges of service, and disgraceful if they are not earned. Service is life. It is only when we are doing something to serve the large movement of the world what we are entitled to live in it, that we really do live in it. Life is measured by usefulness. Of all the varied affliction that swift-footed age can bring, none is more oppressive than the sense of diminished capacity for service.

Not to be ministered unto, but to minister, not to be served, but to serve, is the utterance of the highest authority in spiritual matters. There is but one disgrace connected with service of any kind, and that is to serve ill. Let us perform whatever service falls to us, large or small, high or low, with all the zeal and all the strength that is in us. Then we shall be sure that when we depart we shall be missed, if only a little; and there is no more solid satisfaction in the world than that.

They All Agreed.

"My dear friends," said the hostess when all her guests had assembled, "I am delighted indeed to have you here. I want everybody to have a perfectly good time, and I am going to do what I can to make the evening a success. I have tried to think of some kind of a program that would please everybody, but I find it a difficult thing to do, so I am going to ask you to help me out of my trouble. We can talk about the war and thus have a lovely time, with a few flairs incidentally, perhaps, or my daughter, Penelope will provide for you. Which shall it be?"

Prolonged shouts of "War!"

No Music in Piano Stool.

A Western settler went to the nearest township and purchased a music stool, taking it home with him in his trap. In a few days, however, he brought it back and discarded the money paid, as the stool was no good at all. The shopkeeper examined it and said it was in perfect order, and that it should not be thrown out on his hands.

"Well," said the settler, "I took it home careful, and I gave it a turn, and every one of the children gave it a turn, and never a time could one find all of its screw out of it. It is no more a music stool than the four-legged wooden stool the Indians put her into."

HANDLING MILK IN WINTER

Many Farmers Relax Vigilance in Cold Weather and Low Grade of Milk is Produced.

Many farmers who pay strict attention to the correct handling of their milk and cream during the hot weather relax their vigilance during the winter. The result is that good milk is produced during that part of the year when good milk is difficult to produce and a low grade of milk when it is naturally easy to produce good. Too much dependence should not be placed on the natural coolness of the atmosphere, for the chances are that this will not suffice. It is a noted fact that during the fall and early winter purchasers of milk often find it more difficult to keep the product from getting sour than they do during the hot weather.

Milk should be cooled to at least 50 degrees F. immediately upon being drawn from the can and kept at that temperature until used. If the ordinary coolness of the atmosphere is depended upon for this, it may be hours before the milk reaches the required temperature, and in the meantime microbes have been multiplying which in a short time will render the milk unfit for use. To produce first-class milk the same care is demanded in the winter months as during the summer, cleanliness and a correct temperature being of cardinal importance at all times.

GIVE SORE TEATS ATTENTION

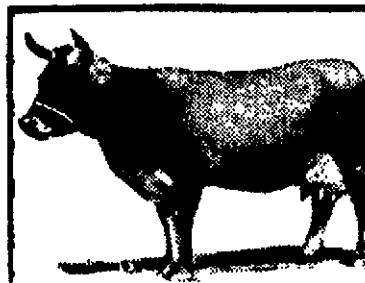

Where Trouble Results From Improper Milking Ointment Made of Zinc and Vaseline.

When cows have sore teats caused by improper milking, applying an ointment made from 1 dram of oxide of zinc and 1 ounce of vaseline applied when the soreness is first apparent will probably be sufficient. If the teats break out in pimples which form scabs it is in all probability a case of cow pox, in which case the affected cows should be isolated from the remainder of the herd and due precaution taken to prevent the spread of the disease, which is very contagious and can be carried to other cows in the herd on the hands or clothes of the milker. Treatment consists in applying, three times a day, an ointment made by mixing together 4 drams of boric acid, 20 drops of carbolic acid.

WORD FOR BROWN SWISS COW

milk records, the total number of the breed in this country is small and it has not, therefore, been as important a factor in the dairy industries here as it has been in Switzerland. The number of animals is rapidly increasing, and the breed is receiving more attention from dairymen.

CREAM THIEVES ARE FOUND

Minnesota Official Finds That 44 Farmers in Nine Associations Have Defective Machines.

"Have you a cream thief on your farm?" is a pertinent question at the head of a circular being sent out by W. A. McKerron of the agricultural extension division of the University of Minnesota.

In answer to the question, Mr. McKerron says that 44 farmers in 9 co-operative associations in Minnesota did have cream thieves, or separators that waste butterfat. Out of 170 separators tested it was found that one in five was stealing from its owner. To prove up on your separator, it is suggested that you take a sample of your skim milk from the spout and have it tested at your creamery or at the college of agriculture. There is no possible excuse for cream separator losses.

SAVE TROUBLE IN CHURNING

Give Cows One Pound of Cottonseed Meal Each Day and Butter Will Increase in Quality.

If farmers who have trouble churning will give their cows one pound of cottonseed meal daily with their bran or chop they will have no more churning troubles. The butter will increase in quantity and quality and color and come so quickly as to surprise one.

WOULD NOT ACCEPT HUNDRED

Forty Pounds' Compensation for Damages on Railroad. All Old Covenanters Would Have.

One of the first railways laid in North Britain connected the ancient city of Perth with Aberdeen. In Chambers Journal there is a pleasant picture of a staunch old covenanter at Whinnysknow who was subjected to a loss that called for compensation from the railway company. William Reid, there is no reason to doubt, gave careful consideration to the question of final jury, and when the railway official waited upon him he had decided the exact amount of the damage that he had suffered.

The official told the farmer that the company had agreed to allow him the sum of one hundred pounds in recompense.

"A hundred pounds!" exclaimed the old covenanter. "I wanna touch it. I have considered the matter and I have made up my mind as to what I should get. I wanna tak' a hunder."

"I would strongly advise you to accept," replied the official. "You are not likely to get more. I think the directors have been generous."

"Too much so! too much so!" was the startling reply. "I wanna tak' the hunder; I'll have forty pounds and not a penny more."

"Oh, is that the trouble?" was the laughing response. "Well, here is the order for one hundred pounds, which you will receive when you call at the office at Perth."

William Reid accepted the order, and a week later presented it at the company's office. A clerk asked him to sign a receipt, and this the farmer did for forty pounds.

"You are to receive one hundred pounds, not forty," said the clerk, counting out the money.

The old farmer was angry. "I told your man," he cried, "that I would tak' forty and not a penny more; and I will not hae it. I want nae man's siller that I've nae right to!"

And William Reid, after twice counting his forty pounds, pushed the remainder back across the counter and walked out of the office—Youth's Companion.

Old Illustrated Book.

One of the oldest illustrated books is an edition of "Aesop's Fables," published about 1471. It has initial letters of great interest, and upward of 100 very curious wood cuts. The copies which have survived the centuries are bound in thick oak boards, covered with stamped leather. There was a book published in Florence only five years after the Aesop which had three copper-plate engravings, and one of the early illustrated works in the grace and excellent fancy of their tail-pieces and type, and the fresh look which the ink has.

Origin of "Bankrupt."

Few words have so remarkable a history as "bankrupt." The money changers of Italy had benches or stalls in the bourse or exchange in former times. At these they conducted their ordinary business. When any of them fell back in the world and became insolvent his bench was broken, and the name of "broken bench" or "banca rotta," was given him. When the word was first adopted into English it was nearer the Italian than it now is, being "bankerout" instead of "bankrupt."

News item says Swarthmore girls have started to shine their own shoes to help win the war. Awful the effect war has on the poor things!

A turkey-filled stomach would certainly have its effect on Pershing's boys but a shipload of machine guns would have been a timely Christmas present to them.

A recent editorial in the New York World shows up the unpatriotic actions of brother Democrats in the South. The editors of the World and local Democratic organ must have something in common.

Quite often one hears the query, "Why do not the British and French airmen raid German bases and cities or the Germans do the Allies?" They do. It is seldom though that any news of damage done leaks back to the Allies. The Allies' airmen only know that they have made hits. Germany, of course, does not say how much damage is done.

NOT NEW

Fuel Administrator Garfield's remarks on the coal situation may have been a revelation to the people of this nation and to the majority of the members of Congress who are indeed in need of much enlightenment on most public matters. It is a fact undenied that the price of coal for a part of this year was exorbitant. None of the coal operators will deny that they sold their spot coal to the highest bidder and bidders were plenty. Now, however, the Fuel Administrator has put the screws on so tight that for the coming year the coal industry will be as much of a gamble as ever. With ideal conditions, such as plenty of labor and a full car supply, the operator can make money but his supply labor is limited and the car supply is not encouraging.

The car supply and adequate transportation facilities are now the paramount needs of the coal industry and incidentally the whole manufacturing world. The Fuel Administrator can well turn its attention to this matter and let the operator alone with the problems of production.

WHAT DO YOU THINK ABOUT IT?

In our well meant efforts to do honor to departing soldiers we very often overdo things to an extent that is not appreciated by the men themselves. Three contingents of men have left Clearfield for the New National Army and each time the streets around them have been so crowded that it was nearly impossible for any loved one or near friend to get close enough to have a parting word to the soldiers. Several of the men who expect to go in the next contingent are quite anxious to get to camp and begin their training for the work that they see clearly defined before them but they say they actually dread the necessity of going through the long ceremony which marks their departure. These men who are to leave, know by our support of the Liberty Bond Issue, the Red Cross Campaign, the Y. M. C. A. campaign and the monster demonstrations heretofore held that every last one of us back home are with them to the last ditch. What need then to go through the same form again?

Further holding of demonstrations will take many men away from tasks which should be performed without delay; idlers who seek an excuse for absence from work will seize upon the opportunity given them and this, together with the omnipresent curiosity bent creature who must follow a crowd, should be enough to prove that further demonstrations will simply crowd out of good intentions.

On the day of departure of the largest contingent it was not a pleasant spectacle to witness an aged mother standing on the sidewalk waving a farewell to her son who was surrounded by a crowd of pill-smoking doctors inwardly gloating over their good fortune in not being caught in the draft.

Let us stand back next time giving friends and relatives a chance for the privilege that is rightfully theirs. Brave and patriotic men shrink from demonstrations. They prefer to go quietly and with steadfast purpose. And we are sending just that kind of men to Camp Lee.

YOUNG MAN TWICE MISTAKEN ONE'S INABILITY TO SLEEP

Addressed as Salesman in Hat Store and Given a Dollar Bill as Tip at Restaurant.

"I forgot to have my initials put in a new hat that I bought last week," said Mr. Blackington, "and so, thinking that way today, I stopped in at the store."

"A little back from the door I saw a tall, straight, kindly looking young man standing there, hatless, looking toward the front, and to him I said, at the same time holding out my hat: 'Will you please put my initials in this hat?'"

"Well, I'd be glad to do that for you," the tall young man said, "but I am waiting here to have the initials put in my own hat. And he said this smiling, and with absolute good nature."

"Then I found a salesman who took my hat; and when I returned to express to the tall young man my regret over having made such a mistake in first addressing him he said it was all right, and told a little story of a somewhat similar experience that had once befallen him."

"One night last winter while he was waiting in a restaurant for a friend who was to join him there, being in dress clothes at the time and standing at the moment near the door, a guest in passing put thrust something into his hand. He didn't look at this, but tucked it in his pocket. A little later when it occurred to him that some body had handed him something he fished it out of his pocket to see what it was. It was a dollar bill."

Insomniac May Be Overcome by Forgetting About It and Avoiding Unnecessary Excitement.

If you don't sleep well don't worry about it. Your head of sleep isn't going to tell you or drive you insane. That is the substance of the advice given by a doctor without in the American Magazine.

It is advice that a good many nervous people need, observes the Kansas City Star. How often do you hear some one apprehensively complaining that he has a "nail night." The chances are that he only thinks he has a nail night, and that in reality he has several hours of sleep between the attacks of wakefulness. But even if he is a real insomniac, it is nothing to be alarmed about. Especially if it is nothing to worry about getting medicine.

The way to get over insomnia is to pay no attention to it, and not to talk about it. Sleep is largely a matter of habit. It depends on living rationally and going to bed at a regular time. You are likely to be wakened if you rise yourself up in the evening. If you work at night or get deeply interested in anything you find it difficult to sleep. That is one chief reason for wakefulness after a night's sleep. The best way is to turn off the lights and try to get some sleep.

Crazilians Are Courteous.

Brasilians are among the most suave, courteous and considerate people in the world. Rude and impudent raise their heads to one another in passing, no matter how often they may meet in the course of a day. A crowded street car is full of numerous apologies from the gentlemen on and off. The Brazilian people in masses are having embraced the best traditions of courtesy and polite feeling from the Latin peoples of southern Europe. Courteous, unpretentious and courteous, the typical Brazilian is eager to assist any one who is on his feet and show a keen interest in the welfare of his fellow man.

Much Oil-Bearing Country.

Nearly 30 per cent of continental Canada is still undiscovered, and if Indian reports are to be believed, most of this is in the basin of the Mackenzie river, one of the largest areas of possible oil-bearing country on the face of the earth. The Indians report the existence of lakes a hundred miles and over long in Yukon that no white man has ever seen, while even the Indians themselves apparently know nothing of the as yet untrodden Mackenzie mountains.

Remaking a War Map of New York

Nurses Are Fighting a Winning Fight Against Pneumonia.

In the office of the Henry Street settlement on the lower East side of New York there is a war map of New York city. It is different both in purpose and appearance from the war map of Europe. It is a peace time war map, but it depicts the advances against pneumonia, one of the worst enemies of mankind, just as those maps of the western front picture the progress against the imperialistic enemy of democracy. This peace time war map shows graphically the need for repelling the war-demonstrated army of nurses just as those maps show the need for repelling the army of the Hun. Last year the Henry Street settlement had more cases of pneumonia under its care than all hospitals of the city put together. The nurses in the Henry Street settlement, who is 29th, while the rest of the city has the most leaders of the movement.

The nurses of the "House on Henry" are striving to remake this foreign born Jews. About 42 per cent of the cases were babies under two years and 76 per cent were children under five.

Each blue headed pin represents a case of pneumonia that the nurses, under the direction of a physician, have cared for in the patient's home. Each black headed pin represents a death. In certain sections of the East side, particularly where the Italians live, these pins are clustered so closely that there is literally no room for a pin point between them. The map is a constant reminder to the nurses of the work they have set before themselves. This is to get rid of the black pins as early and as quickly as possible to eliminate the blue pins. Last year the Henry Street settlement had more cases of pneumonia under its care than all hospitals of the city put together. The nurses in the Henry Street settlement, who is 29th, while the rest of the city has the most leaders of the movement.

SPORT CHATTER

Now that Pitcher George Foster has announced his retirement, it is plain that the Red Sox were on the job when they made the deal for Joe Bush of the Athletics.

Eddie Mahan, Harvard's celebrated football player, has been selected as one of the fifty-one Harvard men who will enter the third officers' training camp at Camp Yaphank next month. Mahan is now an enlisted man in the Marines.

The $50,000 reputed to have been paid by the Red Sox for Schang, Strunk and Bush of the Athletics has undergone considerable shrinkage of late. It is now said that the real price was less than half of the figures first reported.

MARRIED AT HARRISBURG

The following was clipped from the Harrisburg Telegraph under date of December 21st:

At the Stevens Memorial Methodist Episcopal church last evening Miss Waiva E. Klare and J. Oram Wible were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by the Rev. Dr. Clayton Albert Smucker. A touch of more than usual romance is woven into the marriage of the young couple. The bridegroom just home from the Quartermaster's Training School, Columbus, O., decided that, before the call came to go to France he and Miss Klare, who has been employed by the state of Pennsylvania, must wed. The acquaintance has not been short, but it was not until quite recently that the wedding was decided upon. After a short wedding journey the bride will make her home at Harrisburg until the war is over. Mr. Wible, before his enlistment was employed in Pittsburgh.

Miss Klare is a Clearfield county girl and is well known in this city. Her many friends will join in congratulating her.

ONE FICKLE WOMAN

The husband states that they were married Dec. 6, 1916, and alleges that he learned as early as March 26, 1917, that his wife thought more of Newton J. Barger than she did of her lawful hubby, hence they separated in April and the divorce suit follows.

"SERVANT" AN ABUSED WORD

President of United States, Heads of Banks, Ministers, Physicians, Are in Same Class.

It is a pity that we have allowed our language to attach to the good old word "servant," opprobrium utterly unmerited. Talk about "help," or the latest equivalent, "maid," used quite inappropriately, says the Youth's Companion, does not alter circumstances in the least, nor is there any reason why we should wish them altered. Every one who is worth anything is a servant. The merchant serves his customers. If he serves them not well, they discharge him. The lawyer serves his clients, the minister his parishioners, the doctor his patients. The president of a bank is a servant, and so is the president of a railway. The president of the United States is the hired servant of the people of the United States, and few servants in any occupation are more abused by their masters.

Service, well and faithfully performed, is the only real dignity, and all the outward pomp and insignia of rank are but badges of service, and disgraceful if they are not earned. Service is life. It is only when we are doing something to serve the large movement of the world what we are entitled to live in it, that we really do live in it. Life is measured by usefulness. Of all the varied affliction that swift-footed age can bring, none is more oppressive than the sense of diminished capacity for service.

Not to be ministered unto, but to minister, not to be served, but to serve, is the utterance of the highest authority in spiritual matters. There is but one disgrace connected with service of any kind, and that is to serve ill. Let us perform whatever service falls to us, large or small, high or low, with all the zeal and all the strength that is in us. Then we shall be sure that when we depart we shall be missed, if only a little; and there is no more solid satisfaction in the world than that.

They All Agreed.

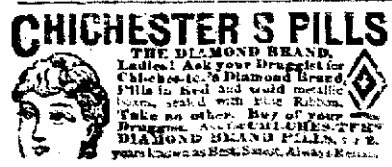

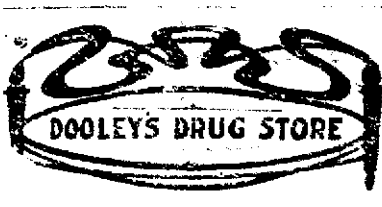

"My dear friends," said the hostess when all her guests had assembled, "I am delighted indeed to have you here. I want everybody to have a perfectly good time, and I am going to do what I can to make the evening a success. I have tried to think of some kind of a program that would please everybody, but I find it a difficult thing to do, so I am going to ask you to help me out of my trouble. We can talk about the war and thus have a lovely time, with a few flairs incidentally perhaps, or my daughter, Penelope will provide for you. Which shall it be?"

Prolonged shouts of "War!"

No Music in Piano Stool.

A Western settler went to the nearest township and purchased a music stool, taking it home with him in his trap. In a few days, however, he brought it back and discarded the money paid, as the stool was no good at all. The shopkeeper examined it and said it was in perfect order, and that it should not be thrown out on his hands.

"Well," said the settler, "I took it home careful, and I gave it a turn, and every one of the children gave it a turn, and never a time could one find all of its screw out of it. It is no more a music stool than the four-legged wooden stool the Indians put their tails on."

HANDLING MILK IN WINTER

Many Farmers Relax Vigilance in Cold Weather and Low Grade of Milk is Produced.

Many farmers who pay strict attention to the correct handling of their milk and cream during the hot weather relax their vigilance during the winter. The result is that good milk is produced during that part of the year when good milk is difficult to produce and a low grade of milk when it is naturally easy to produce good. Too much dependence should not be placed on the natural coolness of the atmosphere, for the chances are that this will not suffice. It is a noted fact that during the fall and early winter purchasers of milk often find it more difficult to keep the product from getting sour than they do during the hot weather.

Milk should be cooled to at least 50 degrees F. immediately upon being drawn from the can and kept at that temperature until used. If the ordinary coolness of the atmosphere is dependent upon for this, it may be hours before the milk reaches the required temperature, and in the meantime microbes have been multiplying which in a short time will render the milk unfit for use. To produce first-class milk the same care is demanded in the winter months as during the summer, cleanliness and a correct temperature being of cardinal importance at all times.

GIVE SORE TEATS ATTENTION

Where Trouble Results From Improper Milking Ointment Made of Zinc and Vaseline.

When cows have sore teats caused by improper milking, applying an ointment made from 1 dram of oxide of zinc and 1 ounce of vaseline applied
when the soreness is first apparent will probably be sufficient. If the teats break out in pimples which form scabs
it is in all probability a case of cow pox, in which case the affected cows should be isolated from the remainder of the herd and due precaution taken to prevent the spread of the disease, which is very contagious and can be carried to other cows in the herd on the hands or clothes of the milker.
Treatment consists in applying, three times a day, an ointment made by mixing together 4 drams of boric acid, 20 drops of carbolic acid.

WORD FOR BROWN SWISS COW

Animals Are Remarkably Strong,
Healthy and Larger, and Coarser
Than Other Dairy Breeds.

Brown Swiss cattle, as the name implies, originated in Switzerland.
They are remarkably strong, healthy animals, larger and coarser than any other dairy breed. While many individuals have made excellent dairy and

Champion Brown Swiss Cow.

milk records, the total number of the breed in this country is small and it has not, therefore, been as important a factor in the dairy industries here as it has been in Switzerland. The number of animals is rapidly increasing, and the breed is receiving more attention from dairymen.

CREAM THIEVES ARE FOUND

Minnesota Official Finds That 44
Farmers in Nine Associations Have Defective Machines.

"Have you a cream thief on your farm?" is a pertinent question at the head of a circular being sent out by W. A. McKerrow of the agricultural extension division of the University of Minnesota.

In answer to the question, Mr. Mc-Kerrow says that 44 farmers in 9
co-operative associations in Minnesota had cream thieves, or separators that waste butterfat. Out of 170 separators tested it was found that one in five was stealing from its owner.

To prove up on your separator, it is suggested that you take a sample of your skim milk from the spout and have it tested at your creamery or at the college of agriculture. There is no possible excuse for cream separator losses.

SAVE TROUBLE IN CHURNING

Give Cows One Pound of Cottonseed Meal Each Day and Butter Will Increase in Quality.

If farmers who have trouble churning will give their cows one pound of cottonseed meal daily with their bran or chop they will have no more churning troubles. The butter will increase in quantity and quality and color and come so quickly as to surprise one.

WOULD NOT ACCEPT HUNDRED

Forty Pounds' Compensation for Damages on Railroad. All Old Covenanters Would Have.

One of the first railways laid in North Britain connected the ancient city of Perth with Aberdeen. In Chambers Journal there is a pleasant picture of a staunch old covenanter at Whitknowe who was subjected to a loss that called for compensation from the railway company. William Reid, there is no reason to doubt, gave careful consideration to the question of injury, and when the railway official waited upon him he had decided the exact amount of the damage that he had suffered.

The official told the farmer that the company had agreed to allow him the sum of one hundred pounds in recompense.

"A hundred pounds!" exclaimed the old covenanter. "I wanna touch it.
I have made up my mind as to what I should get. I wanna tak' a hunder."

"I would strongly advise you to accept," replied the official. "You are not likely to get more. I think the directors have been generous."

"Too much so! too much so!" was the starting reply. "I wanna tak' the hunder; I'll hae forty pounds and not a penny more."

"Oh, is that the trouble?" was the hughing response. "Well, here is the order for one hundred pounds, which you will receive when you call at the office at Perth."

William Reid accepted the order, and a week later presented it at the company's office. A clerk asked him to sign a receipt, and this the farmer did for forty pounds.

"You are to receive one hundred pounds, not forty," said the clerk, counting out the money.

The old farmer was angry. "I told your man," he cried, "that I would tak' forty and not a penny more; and I will not hae it. I want nae man's silver that I've nae right to!"

And William Reid, after twice counting his forty pounds, pushed the remainder back across the counter and walked out of the office—Youth's

Old Illustrated Book.

One of the oldest illustrated books
is an edition of "Aesop's Fables," published about 1471. It has initial letters of great interest, and upward of 100 very curious wood cuts. The copies which have survived the centuries are bound in thick oak boards, covered with stamped leather. There was a book published in Florence only five years after the Aesop which had three copper-plate engravings, and one of the most remarkable features of the early illustrated works is the grace and excellent fancy of their tail-pieces and type, and the fresh look which the ink has.

Origin of "Bankrupt."

Few words have so remarkable a history as "bankrupt." The money changers of Italy had benches or stalls in the bourse or exchange in foreign times. At those they conducted their ordinary business. When any of them fell back in the world and became insolvent his bench was broken, and the name of "broken bench," or "banca rotta," was given him. When the word was first adopted into English it was nearer the Italian than it now is, being
"bankerout" instead of "bankrupt."

CHRISTMAS AT THE CLEAR- FIELD COUNTY HOME

The inmates of the County Home were given the usual Christmas remembrances. Christmas carols were sung at midnight and everybody received a treat of candy and oranges
in the morning.

In addition the County Commissioners presented each inmate with a pair of stockings.

The menu for dinner was:

Chicken, giblet gravy, mashed potatoes, and cold slaw. Mince pie and coffee.

For supper they were served stewed peaches and cake, with bread and coffee.

CHARLES W. MOORE

Charles W. Moore, a retired cattle dealer and resident of Madera, Clearfield county, died suddenly yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, of heart trouble at his home in Madera. The deceased was stricken with an attack of acute indigestion the day following Thanksgiving, followed by ptomaine poisoning, which left his heart in a weakened condition, resulting in his death.

"The cry last season that batting was in the fritz seems to have been a false alarm. American league averages show that nineteen men hit for .300 or better.
